

CARMEL PRIMARY
ADVENTIST COLLEGE

August 19, 2019 | Term 3 | Issue 12

We lose ourselves in BOOKS, we find ourselves there too.

From Mrs Janine Taylor... The Importance of Reflection

One of the questions I have been asked quite frequently in the past couple of weeks since returning to school has been: "isn't it hard to come back to work after a term off?" Well, actually no it hasn't been hard, not at all. That does not mean I did not have a wonderful time during Term 2, I did. But, it feels right to be back at school.

I spent some weeks travelling and then the last few weeks at home, spending time in the garden, visiting my parents, catching up with family and friends. But coming back to school is very much like coming home too. It has been great to catch up with the staff, students and families who play such an important part in my life.

I would like to express heartfelt thanks to Mrs Glenys Blagden and Mrs Tanya Hort who so capably took the leadership role while I was away. And, particular thanks also to Mrs Narelle Duncan, who I am told by Mrs Blagden and Mrs Hort, helped steer the ship during my absence. I am very conscious that all teachers and staff members took on extra tasks and supported the leadership team when they had to write reports, attend meetings and care for administrative tasks. I am very grateful for the contribution made by each one of the team.

Since arriving back, we have been very busy preparing for a Cyclic Review visit. This involves a team of people who come into our school to meet with teachers, students and others in our school community to talk about our school improvement journey over the past 5 years. The visiting team, headed by Mr Jacques Calais, Associate Director, Adventist Schools Australia, arrived last Monday and then worked through to close of school on Tuesday. Before the visit, teachers worked in teams to present the story of our culture, our identity as a Christian School, our students and our future. The process of reflection involved in preparing for this visit was valuable. We reviewed parent feedback through surveys, the strategic plan goals, data on teaching and learning, meeting minutes and a host of other material. Mrs Hort compiled a photo and artifact display to represent this journey and it was the cumulative affect of this display that reminded us of the very rich journey we have been on. As the teachers and support staff spoke with the visiting team and I felt incredibly humbled and proud to hear them speak from their hearts about 'their children' and ' their dreams' for the future. Have we achieved all of our goals? Not yet. Have we plans for future growth? Yes, absolutely.

The Cyclic review is an important step in our school's life cycle. And, a critical element in any evaluation, is time for reflection. Thinking time and prayer are essential elements of a good review process, and yet it can be the part that often gets left out in the busyness of our life. It is good to collect information, but it is equally important to determine what this information is really saying, and then what if any, action needs to follow. Even evaluations and reviews can slip into becoming yet another 'job' to do, or box to tick; missing the great opportunity to check that actions have been purposeful and achieve the goals that were set.

In raising leaders of Godly character, let's together, as family and school, model this important step. We want our children to be committed and fruitful in their activities, we also want them to be wise, discerning and prayerful. Let's not be afraid of deliberately setting aside times for quiet reflection. In a world that is filled with activity and noise, times of silence can be good, and a great chance to hear God's answers to our prayers.

Blessings to you and your family.

Janine Taylor

Year 3 Mother Daughter Dates

The girls from Yr 3 have just started a program called "8 Great Dates for Mums and Daughters". It is a great way to look at true beauty, fashion and modesty while having fun at the same time.

These dates also help build up the relationship between mother and daughter and open the doors of communication before the world becomes confusing to the girls.

Their first date was a high tea, which was enjoyed in the atmosphere of fairy lights and fine china, and of course many yummy desserts. The girls learnt how they are extremely valuable, like fine china, and that they are allowed to treat themselves like 'fine china' in all aspects of their lives (mums too). The girls had a great time and are extremely excited about their second date with their mums.
